High-Quality Service At Midwestern Prices

Our Firm At A Glance

Established in 1964, Kegler, Brown, Hill & Ritter has provided full-service legal counsel to our clients from offices in downtown Columbus, Ohio, for more than 45 years. Our success centers on combining our thorough knowledge of the law with our clients' business needs to help them meet their goals. We believe that continued success in business requires passion, commitment and foresight. It demands incredible attention to detail without losing sight of the big picture.

At Kegler, Brown, Hill & Ritter, we also believe that thorough knowledge of the law is not enough. Our experience shows that outstanding and effective legal counsel requires a combination of this knowledge with a firm grasp of our clients' business and a sharing of their goals. Our attorneys serve as creative planners, experienced advocates, thoughtful problem solvers and proactive counselors in offering a full range of legal services to our clients.

What We Do

Legal issues, like business issues, often do not fit neatly under one area of law. Knowing this, Kegler Brown has tailored its services to reflect the issues impacting clients. Although organized into various practice areas to maximize the benefits of communication and training, our firm provides full-service legal solutions to clients' problems by creating cross-disciplinary teams with skills and experience, as needed, from all areas of law.

Kegler Brown's Quality & Responsiveness: What Clients Say

For more than 45 years, Kegler Brown has been committed to providing our clients with the most timely, responsive, high-quality legal services anywhere. This dedication is valued by our clients and partners and has become a defining characteristic of our firm. In fact, in its most recent publication, Chambers and Partners, which is an international organization dedicated to analyzing the legal profession through the eyes of clients, honored Kegler Brown with a high ranking and provided the following analysis, based on interviews with firm clients:

Our Construction Area: This firm's seven construction attorneys form a compact and high-quality practice that advises developers and public bodies on construction projects. The team has particular strength in representing trade associations and subcontractors. Notable highlights include serving as construction counsel to the entity charged with a high-profile redevelopment project for downtown Columbus. Sources say: "Whether it is filing mechanics' liens, construction litigation or garnishments, they do an excellent job with professionalism and expertise from top to bottom."

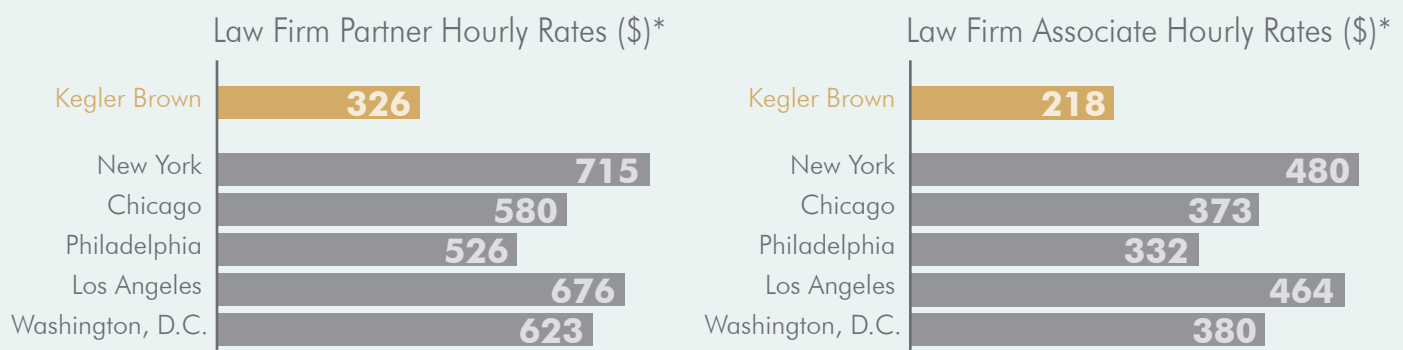

Our Attorneys: Director Donald Gregory acts out of Columbus and is described as "responsive, timely, thorough and forthright." Clients agree: "He's always at the forefront in providing information to help us run our business more efficiently and effectively." Notable work includes filing amicus briefs for the American Subcontractors Association's Subcontractors Legal Defense Fund in many states, and securing wins in Maryland, Texas, Arizona, Colorado and Ohio.

Kegler Brown's Value Proposition

For those of us who live and work in Columbus, Ohio, it is no surprise that Forbes magazine rated our city among the top 10 "Most Affordable Places to Live Well" in a recent report. Because of the relative cost of living, which sits well below the national average, Kegler Brown is uniquely able to offer its clients the same high-quality legal work, elite client service, and track record of success offered by high-profile national firms, but all at much lower Midwestern prices.

Our location in Columbus means we pay less than most for the same everyday expenses. It also means that our clients, locally, nationally and internationally, pay less for their legal services.

* Total average hourly rates for the New York, Los Angeles, Boston, Chicago and Washington, D.C. legal markets were calculated using rates found in the December 2011 National Law Journal "NLJ250" survey.
