

Criminal Litigation

Our criminal defense team represents individuals and corporations who have been charged with any manner of criminal offenses. We advise and represent clients who are under investigation, have been formally charged or are seeking post-conviction relief or appeal.

Kegler Brown's criminal defense attorneys have represented numerous clients in some of the state's most high-profile trials. Our practice leader, Mike Miller, is a former FBI agent, municipal court judge, and long-time Franklin County prosecutor.

Our Services

Our lawyers represent clients in grand jury proceedings, trials and agency investigations. We routinely represent clients in municipal, state and federal courts throughout Ohio.

- + White collar criminal defense
- + Offenses from misdemeanors to felonies
- + Student and juvenile violations
- + Law enforcement interviews
- + Applications for expungement

Our Clients

Our individual clients seek us out for reasons ranging from traffic violations to allegations of serious criminal activity. Juvenile representation includes adolescents charged in traffic court, as well as cases involving allegations of drug possession or underage drinking in municipal and mayors' courts. We also represent college students charged with student conduct violations.

Our lawyers also represent corporations and their leaders in a wide range of criminal matters stemming from business operations, including securities violations, criminal antitrust violations (e.g., bid-rigging and price fixing), criminal matters involving environmental issues or hazardous materials handling, embezzlement, and international conduct involving the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act.
