

Energy Litigation

Kegler Brown was founded fifty years ago, primarily serving the oil and gas industry. Since then, we have broadened our scope of practice to become a full-service law firm – but we've never strayed from our roots in the energy industry.

Today, we provide comprehensive litigation counsel to oil and gas producers, drillers, mid-stream entities and ancillary service providers, as well as public utilities and competitive gas and electricity suppliers.

To support our extensive work with our clients in the oil and gas industry, our attorneys regularly publish articles, make presentations and have served as recognized leaders in the Ohio energy industry. Moreover, many of our energy attorneys have earned an "AV" rating from Martindale-Hubbell, the highest honor given by the peer-review organization, and have been recognized in The Best Lawyers in America and Ohio Super Lawyers.

Our Services

- + General litigation counsel
- + Trial counsel
- + Appellate counsel
- + Creditors' rights + collections

Our Clients

Our clients are local, regional and national in scope, but all have Ohio operations. We regularly represent our clients in litigation in Ohio state and federal courts regarding a variety of claims, including breach of supply agreements, actions to quiet title to oil and gas interests, royalty disputes and negligence. Several of our attorneys have been involved in landmark cases that have helped establish legal precedent in Ohio's multi-billion-dollar oil and gas industry. In addition, we have provided representation in significant property damage claims and complex commercial litigation for some of the energy industry's most recognizable businesses.

Our energy litigation clients include:

- + Oil and gas producers and drillers
- + Ancillary service providers
- + Mid-stream pipelines
- + Public utilities
